FRE 108 is an intermediate advanced course. It will take you on a journey through various periods of French history and culture and offer an opportunity to reflect on important questions at the center of contemporary debates. Examples include: the role of the State in the shaping of the nation, the organic revolution, the role of education in our society, etc... We have selected a wide variety of materials (films, videos, music, newspaper articles and literary texts) and carefully incorporated them into the curriculum so you will develop the ability to communicate and gain understanding of French and francophone cultures and societies.

Prerequisites and Restrictions: Placement through the University's Placement Test or completion of FRE 105.

Other Information: Offered both semesters. Classes in French. NOTE: FRE 108 also helps in preparation for applying to our study abroad programs.
